SOS is an international, social service agency helping foster children and their families. SOS Illinois' newest Children's Village is a 15,000 square foot community center with some unique features. The building combines the services for foster care families and neighborhood families into one location.

Unique to this project is the exposed concrete finishes, with irregular openings and angles throughout the design. Special concrete mixes were utilized to provide the walls with their unique coloring. The irregular openings make for a unique architectural aesthetic. Adjustable Forms was able to deliver the exposed concrete throughout the building with fantastic results.
